Reflections on Supt. James H. Jones and His School Era

Yesterday's edition saluted James H. Jones who next June will retire as superintendent of Hope Public Schools. From 1933 to 1973 is a span of 40 years—and fortunate the man who manages well a difficult school post and finds he is honored by the community to the very end.

Mr. Jones hit the highlights of his career in Mrs. Rebecca Lazenby's interview Wednesday.

I can add some background details about the early school system as I saw it upon my arrival in Hope in 1929, and, somewhat later, as a three-year member of the School Board.

In 1929 the old Garland High School stood on the courthouse site, a boggy piece of ground which was gradually demolishing the building. It was held together by iron rods which traversed the entire structure.

The late D. L. Paisley was superintendent, followed by Miss Beryl Henry. Mr. Jones became principal in 1936, and in 1942 succeeded Miss Henry as superintendent.

The first step toward improving a desperate situation was taken when the school district bought the Main and 16th Sts. hilltop and built the present senior high school. There were some critics of the big land purchase, a site then quite remote from the central city. But the late Dr. Don Smith, School Board chairman, was a man of vision and put the project through. Today the high school hill area is fairly crowded.

In Wednesday's interview Mr. Jones said "This district is in the best financial condition in its history"—which is the understatement of the year! In the three years I was a board member it was, to my way of thinking, flat broke. During the 1929-33 depression school warrants were so depressed that the teachers had to discount them, first at 10 per cent, later at 20 per cent. The late George W. Robison, father of George W. Robison, Jr., who had the big Robison department store, told me the situation was so acute that he took school warrants without discount and held them as collateral against sales to school teachers—trusting some future day would return the warrants to par.

Later, when I was a board member, I encountered a bizarre system of finance which was common in school business 40 years ago. The Hope schools had a sizable floating debt and the board was very careful never to make the mistake of reducing it. Because once the debt was decreased it couldn't be raised again.

The theory was that if you paid anything on the debt that might be the margin by which you would be unable to operate the schools in the following year—because you couldn't borrow back what you had paid.

The system kept the schools alive—but to this day, every time I think of it I want to climb a wall.

That's the picture James H. Jones walked into as a young Hope school administrator.

That he lived through it, and brightened the picture into today's solvency, is the greatest tribute I can think of.

Suit is filed

HUNTSVILLE, Ark. (AP) — A suit filed in Circuit Court here Wednesday by three unsuccessful Republican candidates for county office in Madison County asks that the results of the election be declared invalid.

The suit was filed by Johnny Reed, candidate for sheriff; Larry Easterling, candidate for treasurer; and Tom Jackson, candidate for county clerk. All were defeated by Democrats in the Nov. 7 general election.

Cease-fire in Ireland turned down by British

By COLIN FROST

Associated Press Writer
DUBLIN (AP) — The Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army sought a cease-fire in Northern Ireland three times in the last two weeks, but the British turned them down, informed sources reported today.

The report came amid more violence in the British province and growing fears that the guerrillas planned a similar terror campaign in the Irish Republic. Prime Minister Jack Lynch's government is struggling to push through Parliament controversial legislation to give the government new weapons against the underground army.

The cease-fire requests were made through intermediaries to the office of William Whitelaw, Britain's administrator in Northern Ireland.

Whitelaw rejected every bid. He came under fierce fire from Ulster's Protestant militants last summer after he held secret talks with the Provisionals that brought an ill-fated two-week cease-fire.

A political source stressed: "Whitelaw can't afford to be seen dead with the IRA now. He knows it would inflame the Protestants."

The sources reported the IRA indicated it was prepared to drop previous demands for amnesty for detainees, the ending of special courts and internment without trial and the withdrawal of British troops to their barracks.

This time the guerrillas reportedly sought only two things — a declaration of intent for a united Ireland and amnesty for guerrillas on the run. But British agreement to either would have brought an explosion of Protestant wrath.

The British also feel the army is on top of the guerrillas now, after rounding up or killing more than 100, including several top officers, in the last four months. Any let up would give the Provisionals time to regroup and rest up as they did in the summer.

Meanwhile, IRA terrorists in Northern Ireland kept up their new campaign using the same Soviet rocket grenades that Arab guerrillas have been using in Israel for years.

After 10 rocket strikes on Tuesday in which two persons were killed, there were three more Wednesday. But the attacks on the second day did little damage and caused no casualties.

Nixon promises no avoidable delay in peace

PARIS (AP) — The United States pledged today that President Nixon will not permit any avoidable delay in ending the Vietnam war.

U.S. Ambassador William J. Porter told the 16th weekly session of the Paris peace talks:

"We had hoped, as you know, to reach an agreement earlier. We worked hard to bring this about, but the issues in this long conflict are complex, as all recognize, and can be neither dismissed nor distorted."

"We reiterate to you our President's firm intention to permit no avoidable delay in ending this war and entering a period of peace and reconstruction. Peace, when it comes, will be all the more stable and enduring if it is the result of planning careful and equitable relationships for the future."

In an apparent reference to the secret talks between Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho, Porter said:

"In this present phase, then, we should respect each other's problems and concerns, and we should have faith that the serious purpose demonstrated and the major progress achieved will lead at an early date to a mutually satisfactory final result. I believe we all owe it to our people, who have confidence in us, to continue the efforts which have been made thus far and bring them to a successful conclusion."

South Vietnam's representative, Pham Dang Lam, repeated his government's demand for withdrawal of all North Vietnamese forces in the South.

He said it was also "absolutely necessary to restore the demilitarized zone which the North Vietnamese troops crossed massively last March to invade South Vietnam in blatant violation of the 1954 Geneva accords."

He said the internal political problem of South Vietnam must be left to the government of the Republic of Vietnam and the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front.

More appointments are expected today

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is expected to announce more top-level administrative personnel changes today before he departs for a week-end stay in Florida.

Moving his operations back to the White House briefly, the chief executive also scheduled a budget conference to continue his efforts to trim fiscal 1973 spending to $250 billion and to hold the line against rising costs in the 1974 budget.

Called in for the fiscal talks were Secretary of the Treasury George Shultz, domestic adviser John Ehrlichman and Caspar Weinberger, the present budget director whom Nixon has nominated as the new secretary of health, education and welfare.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the President has been engaged in intensive work on second-term plans at his mountain retreat at Camp David, Md., and hoped to "take some time off" with a long weekend at his home in Key Biscayne, Fla.

Ziegler said there would be staff meetings in Florida and added that Nixon has instructed national security adviser Henry A. Kissinger to confer with him in Florida Saturday for last-minute instructions before the Paris peace talks resume on Monday.

Nixon returned to Washington from Camp David Wednesday afternoon to meet with Nguyen Phu Duc, an emissary of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu.

That session ran 3½ hours, instead of the scheduled hour, and held up a meeting Nixon called with 37 black appointees to his administration.

Nixon urged the group to help recruit additional qualified blacks for government posts.

The black appointees, who were among officials required to turn in pro forma resignations for the end of Nixon's first term, apparently were assured they would not lose their jobs in Nixon's personnel reshuffling, a presidential spokesman said.

In his second day of cabinet reshuffling Wednesday, Nixon announced a new secretary of labor, Peter J. Brennan, 54-year-old leader of a New York building and construction trades council and a lifelong Democrat.

A master painter by trade, Brennan first came to Nixon's attention in 1970 when he led a mass march of hard-hat construction workers and longshoremen in New York City to support the President's Vietnam policies.

4 die in leap to avoid fire

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Spectators jammed streets in the heart of the city as five women leaped from the 15th floor of a burning building. Some wept, some prayed as helicopters raced with death to rescue eight men trapped on the roof. Four persons died.

The women on the 15th floor of the 16-story building called for help as firemen tried unsuccessfully to reach them with extension ladders lashed together.

"We were three stories too short," said Fire Chief Louis San Salvador. He said there was a possibility of arson.

As the flames licked nearer, the five women began jumping. With the horrified crowd watching, they plunged to a rooftop of an adjoining building — a fall of eight stories.

Each fall was accompanied by a scream from the crowd.

"The first girl ... fell straight," said Mark Wheeler II, who watched from the street. "The others came out somersaulting and hitting the edge of the building as they came down."

Pat Tynes watched from the roof of the building to which the women plunged.

He said firemen tried four times to shoot a rope to the women above, getting enough height, but aiming wide of the mark.

"After each shot, they had to reload the gun, rewind the rope and set up for another shot," Tynes said. "Time was so damned precious."

In still another attempt at rescue, helicopter pilot Albert Carrigan tried to get a rope to the women.

"I got to the corner of the building just in time to see the last one fall," Carrigan said. "It was sickening."

Two who survived the fall had their impact broken by men on the lower roof who linked arms and tried to catch them. They were listed in critical condition with internal injuries.

The fourth victim of the fire, a man, was found on the 14th floor stairwell, apparently a suffocation victim.

Meanwhile, eight men were trapped on the roof of the burning Raul Center, an office-residence complex.

"We were in a race with that smoke and I just knew we were losing, and that 'copter was the most beautiful thing I had ever seen," said Cal Grevenberg.

John Lockwood, an oil company helicopter pilot, was flying by the center when he saw the fire and spotted the men through a haze of tar-stained smoke.

Lockwood landed at City Hall to let out a passenger and then went back to the rooftop. He evacuated six in two trips. Another 'copter got the remaining two, just before the roof gave way.

The fire gutted the 15th and 16th floors. The top floor was occupied by the exclusive member-only Lamplighter Club.

San Salvador said there is a possibility of arson because there was a smaller fire in the club cloakroom earlier in the day.

There were about 100 persons in the club when the explosion was heard and the flames began licking up from the floor below. Most managed to scramble to lower floors.

Trouble ahead for U.S. quest?

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States received preliminary approval today of its quest for a reduced U.N. budget assessment. But trouble could lie ahead, and it may sound like a replay of the procedural wrangle that accompanied China's membership fight.

U.S. failure in the long run would leave Congress and the General Assembly in open conflict, with the United States likely to lapse into the red on its U.N. bill.

The United States counted on the remaining vestiges of good will it created by helping Europe and Japan recovered from World War II to put the measure across.

A narrow victory was forecast in the budget committee of the General Assembly despite opposition from the Soviet bloc, China and many countries of Africa and Asia not yet independent when the war was fought.

The U.S. delegation is acting at the direction of Congress, which decided to lower the American share of the regular budget from 31.52 per cent to 25 per cent in 1974. Under the U.N. charter, the assembly and its organs reserve the right to levy assessments, largely on the basis of ability to pay.

The reduction would have amounted to about $13 million on this year's budget.

Easy fishing

The Soil Conservation Service assisted Hempstead County farmers in the construction of 67 stock water ponds in 1972. Besides stock water, these ponds produce good fishing if properly managed. Pictured above is a fish truck with the biologist weighing out fish fingerlings (bream) for farmers. The number of fish is determined by the surface area of the pond; ponds, well fertilized, are stocked at the rate of 1,000 bream and 100 bass per surface acre. The bream are delivered in the fall or winter and stocked in ponds about six months before the bass delivery, so that these bream will spawn before the bass get large enough to eat them. The bream fingerlings delivered today should spawn in April or May, or as soon as the water warms up to about 65 degrees. Half of these bream were blue gills and half were red ear. ## Wallace's goal--to remain active MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace says he intends to remain active politically and is considering the possibility of running for a third term as governor in 1974 and for president again two years later.

Wallace made his remarks Wednesday at his first full-fledged news conference since he was wounded at Laurel, Md., last May 15.

The governor also said he has "no regrets" over his presidential campaign which left him paralyzed in both legs.

"If I had to go over it again I would go over it again," he said.

Wallace is still paralyzed from the waist down from one of the bullets which struck him after a campaign speech during the Maryland primary, which he won the next day.

Referring to the shooting, he said, "I knew this could happen. It's a chance everybody in public office takes."

"I have no regrets. I have no bitterness, no bitterness against the man who shot me. I have forgiven him."

Arthur Herman Bremer has since been convicted of the shooting.

Wallace was asked about a statement made in Washington by his national campaign director, Charles S. Snider, who said the governor might consider running for president as a Republican.

"I have no intention of leaving the Alabama Democratic party," Wallace said, "and I don't see the Republicans nominating me at all."

Snider said Wednesday, "I do not see how he (Wallace) can remain in a part of a party that refuses to listen to the average citizens of our country."

"I have been asked if he might change to the Republican party and I have stated that the possibility is very remote but it cannot be ruled out, but again he speaks for himself."

Snider, who returned from Washington Wednesday, made the statement prior to the news conference, although his prepared text was released afterwards.

Wallace said that "naturally I am interested in being involved" in the 1974 governor's race but that he will make that decision later. And much will depend, he said, on his health and recuperation from his injury.

The governor was in a jovial mood during the one-hour news conference. At one point he quipped, "I can't do much standing up for Alabama but I can do a lot of sitting down."

His campaign slogan when he ran for governor was "Stand Up for Alabama."

Dancers appeal conviction

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The conviction of Lorie Robinson and Shirley Morris, two topless dancers, on an obscenity charge was appealed Wednesday to the state Supreme Court. The appeal contends that the law under which they were convicted discriminates against the female sex.

The two women were arrested in September 1971 at the Gaudin Club in Little Rock. Each was fined $50 and costs on charges that they danced bare-breasted at the club and that during the performance a man painted their breasts with fluorescent paint.

The convictions, which took place in Municipal Court and were upheld in Circuit Court, should be dismissed because there was no hearing to determine what is and what is not obscene, the appeal contends.

It also contends that the Arkansas laws under which the dancers were prosecuted are unconstitutional because they are vague and do not give an adequate definition of obscenity.

Finally, the brief filed on behalf of the defendants contends that the laws discriminate against women.

Although the appeal says the case is not a civil rights case, and the point was not raised when the lower courts were dealing with the case, it says the Supreme Court should summarily decide the issue because "the rights of citizens to the protection of the law is so basic."

The dancers, the appeal said, urge the court to take "judicial knowledge of the fact that males of the specie homo sapien (human beings) have, since the beginning of time, gone about in public bare from the waist up."

"Not within the memory of man has any male been prosecuted originally for this offense, therefore, it can only be concluded by reasonable men that the defendants here were prosecuted solely because they are female," the appeal said.

It added: "The defendants earnestly contend that the only discernible difference between the male and the female is in the size of the mammary glands and it is, at times, difficult for reasonable men to distinguish this difference."

It asks that the convictions be reversed and dismissed.

Unit is approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 100-bed nursing home care unit will be established at the Veterans Administration hospital in North Little Rock, according to the office of Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark.

Officials said 50 nursing home care beds have been operating since mid-1971 in temporary quarters and these, plus an additional 50 beds would be provided by renovation and modernization of existing facilities.

No Americans are reported killed in VN

SAIGON (AP) — No Americans were reported killed in Vietnam last week, but three were missing or captured, the U.S. Command reported today. It was the first weekly casualty summary without fatalities since January 1965, when the United States was just beginning its massive troop buildup.

Another 11 Americans were wounded, the U.S. Command said.

The pattern of more Americans missing than killed is likely to continue because the chief U.S. participation in the war is now the air campaign against North Vietnam.

Three of the last 11 weekly casualty summaries have listed no U.S. combat deaths, but on those weeks there were reports of servicemen dead from "causes other than hostile action."

The South Vietnamese command rereported the highest government and enemy casualties since the first week of November. It said 490 government troops were killed, 1,821 were wounded, 166 were missing, 1,806 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were killed, and 51 were captured.

The allied commands now have reported these total casualties for the war:

American—45,914 killed in action, 303,534 wounded, 10,287 dead from nonhostile cause, 1,706 missing or captured.

South Vietnamese—160,375 killed, 426,576 wounded.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong—911,499 killed.

GRADUATES—Marine Pfc. Victor B. Fowler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd B. Fowler, and husband of the former Miss Alvina J. Cox, all of 720 W. Third St., Hope, graduated from basic training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot in San Diego.

Patricia Huckabee of Hope, a sophomore drama and English major at Ouachita Baptist University, has been chosen to the cast of "The Little Blue Horse," the 1972 OBU Children Theatre's production. The play which will be presented Dec. 5-9 in Ouachita's Verser Drama Center, is a fantasy concerning a little boy's quest for a donkey which he imagines to be a magical blue horse. Pat is playing the role of a washerwoman. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dorsey Huckabee of Hope.

Lance Cpl. David S. Beasley was honorably discharged from the U. S. Marine Corps. Beasley was honored with a special meritorious mast in California. In the special mast, Beasley's commanding officer said:

The annual homecoming will be held at Willisville High School on Friday, Dec. 1. Registration will be held in the lobby of the gym beginning at 5:30. There will be two senior games with Laneburg, beginning at 6:30. Between game activities will include the crowning of the 1972-73 homecoming queen and the recognition of all former students and faculty members.

Effective the first week in December the Selective Service Office in Hope will be open five days a week.

Steelers aren't the same

PITTSBURGH (AP) — They aren't the Same Old Steelers anymore. Just ask Gerela's Gorillas, Franco's Italian Army or the newly formed Dobro Shunka fan club.

All those groups have been spawned by the success of the Pittsburgh Steelers, making a strong bid for the first division title in their 40-year pro football history.

Gerela's Gorillas favor placekicker Roy Gerela, and rookie running sensation Franco Harris is the honorary commander of Franco's Italian Army. But what about Dobro Shunka?

"That's Slovak for 'Great Ham,'" says Steeler linebacker Jack Ham, whose ancestors were European.

"They're a great bunch of guys," Ham added. "Most of them live over in Port Vue, same as Gerela's Gorillas. You can't beat enthusiasm like that."

Ham knows first hand the degree of Steeler mania. He's probably the only pro football player ever to get an ovation during a church sermon.

"It happened at evening Mass the Sunday we beat Kansas City," recalls Ham, who attends St. Bernard's Roman Catholic Church in suburban Dormont.

The Monsignor was sermonizing on parish matters when suddenly he decided to switch topics and proclaimed from the pulpit, "How about those Steelers?"

During the ensuing praise, he asked if Steeler vice President Dan Rooney, a member of the parish, was in attendance. Rooney wasn't but Ham was and one of the faithful stood up and introduced him as "Jack Ham — the Steelers great linebacker."

"It was really something," recalls Ham. "They gave me a big ovation just like we were out at the stadium, I even stayed after Mass and signed autographs."

Baseball trades go 'round & round'

By KEN RAFFOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
HONOLULU (AP) — Tom Bradley now is a member of the San Francisco Giants and Ken Henderson and Steve Stone are new additions to the Chicago White Sox roster.

And the trading goes "round and round" at the winter baseball meetings.

"We now have the most powerful team in White Sox history," Chicago Manager Chuck Tanner said after swinging a three-man trade Wednesday—one of three in nine hours and the 10th swap in five days at this 71st annual affair.

Henderson, a hard-hitting center fielder and Stone, a young pitcher of promise, were acquired by the White Sox for Bradley, a pitcher of proven quality.

Henderson, who hit 18 home runs for the Giants in 1972, joins the like of sluggers Dick Allen and Bill Melton in the loaded Chicago lineup.

In an almost-simultaneous announcement, the St. Louis Cardinals secured relief star Wayne Granger in a three-man trade with the Minnesota Twins. The Twins landed outfielder Larry Hiale and pitcher John Cumberland.

Earlier in the morning, the Cardinals obtained infielder Ray Bussie and Bobby Fenwick for catcher Skip Jutzke and infielder Milt Ramirez from the Houston Astros.

The activity was heavy—but it was just an average day. Since Saturday, when the New York Yankees and Oakland A's started things off with a three-man trade, a total of 36 players have changed uniforms in deals involving 14 teams.

Meanwhile, commissioner Bowie Kuhn took some play away from the fast-talking general managers by delivering a pitch of his own at a press conference.

Kuhn, remarking that he hoped to prevent another strike like last spring's, revealed a new basic contract proposal from the owners to the Major League Players Association.

The package offered improvements in the reserve system, benefit plan, salaries and basic agreement contracts. But the commissioner emphasized that there was "still considerable difference" between the club owners and players' representatives.

"I would say that there is a considerable difference in the philosophies of the players and the clubs as I understand them," said Kuhn. "But I'm gratified by the efforts they've made so far and I feel both sides are prepared in the weeks ahead to proceed with negotiations and find a solution."

However, if Kuhn wishes to avoid a repetition of last spring's strike, the owners will probably have to come up with a higher bounty than the $6 million offered in their yearly contributions to the benefit plan.

One of the significant items in the latest proposal, the owners said they would continue their annual contribution for three more years, with an increase in 1973 "up to $300,000 more to meet the increased cost of health care coverage that year." That was the specific that sparked last spring's 15-day strike, the first in baseball history.

The reserve system was another hot topic aired by Kuhn before a roomful of reporters.

"Firstly, on the matter of the reserve system," said Kuhn, "the clubs have proposed that a player with five years of major league service becomes a free agent unless his club offers a salary of at least $30,000 for his sixth year. A player with eight years of major league service becomes a free agent unless his club offers a salary of at least $40,000 for his ninth year."

The owners also proposed to create a draft pool of three players from each major league roster, available at a price of $35,000 apiece, and offered to reduce under their control rosters from 40 to 38 and major league rosters from 25 to 23.

Also, the owners proposed that players with 10 years of major league service be consulted regarding consignment of their contracts. In order to qualify under the owner's plan, the players would have to play for the same team for the last five seasons.

The reserve system, which binds a player to a team until he has been traded, sold or released, has long been an irritable wedge between owners and players. And, Kuhn said, it is still a burning item.

Kuhn said that 13 negotiating sessions have been held between the owners and players since September.

"I feel they are prepared to do serious negotiating, to try to find a solution so that a strike doesn't happen again," said Kuhn. "But we probably won't know if we should be optimistic or pessimistic about the situation until the players and owners meet again in New York next Wednesday."

The Players Association currently is meeting in the Bahamas and studying the owners' latest proposal, according to Kuhn.

Wonderly, Campbell win award

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Defensive tackle Don Wonderly and cornerback Louis Campbell have tied for the Crip Hall award, which is presented to the outstanding senior player in the Arkansas Razorbacks' homecoming football game.

The award, which is a watch, is presented annually by state Treasurer Nancy J. Hall in memory of her late husband, the former secretary of state.

A U. of A. spokesman said each player will receive a watch for their performances in the Razorbacks' loss to Southern Methodist.

Atterley sees no future with Cowboys

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) — Herb Adderley spoke the words softly with no trace of bitterness: "It's obvious to me my future isn't with the Dallas Cowboys ... this will be my last year."

The 12-year National Football League cornerback, veteran of four Super Bowls, was benched three games ago in favor of third year man Charlie Waters.

Coch Tom Landry said Adderley wasn't coming up with turnovers which was needed in the former All-NFL star's gambling style of play.

"I know I have some play left in me," said the 32-year-old Adderley. "I'm moving the same as I always have been. I feel great physically. I've never been what you would call a speed burner. But I can still go ... I just want the chance."

Adderley, who played in two Super Bowls for Green Bay before he was traded to Dallas where he played in two more, said he was used to more of a free lance style of play than that imposed on him by the Dallas system.

"I've been a reactor to what I see and I have to go for the ball to play my game," Adderley said. "I found myself hanging back because I was afraid of the way it would look in the films."

Adderley, who is on the last year of his contract with the Cowboys, said "I hate to go. It's been a tremendous experience here. I've met some beautiful people and that's what life is all about."

"I go to practice with a smile. I thank God I'm healthy. And I feel a certain sadness for all the great players who haven't played in the Super Bowl like Gale Sayers, Sonny Jurgensen, Deacon Jones, Merlin Olsen, and Larry Wilson. They've played their heart out the same way I have for 10, 12, or 13 years and never had the thrill of the Super Bowl."

Adderley said "I feel very appreciative that the Cowboys thought I was good enough to make a trade for three years ago. I could have gone to another team and been completely forgotten."

He said "I think they want to go with youth at my cornerback position and I go along with the move they've made if Landry thinks that is for the best results of the team. I'm a team man ... I have to go along with a team situation ... I'm a team man ... and a winner."

Adderley said he wouldn't discuss the current problems with the Cowboy defense, saying "I'm not a coach."

He added "Morale is not the big issue ... It's the same as it has been in my three years here."

Adderley's only advice to his teammates was to "play with abandon ... don't be afraid to make a mistake."

He concluded his interview with The Associated Press, saying "I have to be truthful ... I think I helped the Cowboys and I played the best football I can possibly play ... I plan to go in and have a decent conversation about my situation at the end of the season. If there is any future left for me (with Dallas), I would appreciate knowing what the situation is."

There's no doubt about my future here ... I'm not in it ..."

Buckeyes share title with Mich.

By GEORGE STRODE
Associated Press Sports Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Rick Middleton, an optimistic soul, figured Michigan had "only four chances" to go one yard for a touchdown that would have meant a Big Ten title and Rose Bowl trip.

"I kept saying, 'They've only got four chances to go a yard.' I figured in four plays we'd be out of there," said the 6-foot-3, 214-pound junior from Delaware, Ohio.

Middleton and his fellow Ohio State linebackers, Randy Gradishar and Arnie Jones, succeeded, leading the Buckeye defense to its second superb goal line stand in a 16-11 triumph Saturday.

The victory gave Ohio State a co-title with Michigan and a Rose Bowl berth and the linebacking trio The Associated Press National College Linebacker of the Week honors.

Jones' seven solo tackles and 17 assists, two solos and 15 assists by Middleton and five solos and 10 assists from Gradishar didn't surprise Ohio State defensive coordinator George Hill.

"Put them together and they're three of the finest in the country," said Hill. "It hasn't dropped off much without Vic Koenig."

Celtics down 76ers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The first-place Boston Celtics played poorly for one half, but the last-place Philadelphia 76ers played poorly for an entire game.

"We played very sloppy in the first half," said Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn after Wednesday night's National Basketball Association game against Seattle. "We can't afford to play like that."

But they could afford to play like that, moving from a 49-45 halftime lead to a 120-98 victory that boosted their Atlantic Division-leading record to 18-3. John Havlicek led Boston with 22 points while Spencer Haywood scored 20 for Seattle.

"We just did everything wrong," said Philadelphia Coach Roy Rubin after the 76ers were routed 120-91 by the New York Knicks for their 20th defeat in 22 games. The Knicks won for the 20th time in 24 starts and lead Boston by a half game but trail the Celtics by percentage points. The top Knicks scorer was Bill Bradley, with 26 points, while Fred Carter led Philadelphia with 21.

In other NBA action, Houston beat Baltimore 102-84, Phoenix topped Atlanta 100-88, Milwaukee took Chicago 106-97 and Kansas City-Omaha downed Portland 110-102.

Jack Marin and Otto Moore sparked a fourth-quarter surge that led Houston past Baltimore at San Antonio, Tex., and to within a half game of first-place Baltimore in the Central Division. Marin was high for the Rockets, with 21 points. Elvin Hayes scored 30 for Baltimore.

Atlanta stayed one game back of Baltimore by losing to Phoenix, which got 27 points each from Connie Hawkins and Charlie Scott. Lou Hudson led Atlanta with 30.

Conference race ends Saturday

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
There won't be many fans there to see it but the two final games on the Southwest Conference calendar Saturday could mean the difference in a team finishing anywhere from third to last.

Rice is at Baylor and Southern Methodist is at Texas Christian.

Should Rice and SMU win they could finish in a second-place tie with Texas Tech with 4-3 records. Losses would plunge Texas Christian and Baylor into the cellar along with Texas A&M at 2-5.

Should Baylor and TCU win it would knot five teams in a tie for third place with 3-4 records—SMU, Rice, Arkansas, Baylor and TCU.

"I keep telling our kids how important the game is but at this time of year I guess it's just more a matter of individual pride to go out there and play well," said SMU Coach Hayden Fry. "There's a lot of difference to me between a 6-5 season record and a 7-4. For one thing, 7-4 sounds better."

Fry said, "One of the first things Matty Bell (former SMU coach and athletic director) told me when I came here was that my most difficult assignment would be to beat TCU in Fort Worth. Something always happens to us over there."

SMU hadn't beaten TCU in Fort Worth since 1945 until Fry's team downed the Horned Frogs in 1966. SMU won in Fort Worth in 1968, but fired-up TCU, playing its last game for fired coach Fred Taylor dumped the Mustangs in 1970.

"We're in our worst condition of the season," Fry said. "I'm concerned. We will have to play super ball to beat TCU in Fort Worth."

Fry said he understood that TCU Coach Billy Tobill had dedicated a victory to Horned Frog fans.

"That's pretty strong," Fry laughed. "I hope we're ready." Crowds of 20,000 are less were expected for the 2 p.m. games.

Early Christmas present for Bolivian immigrants

By WILLIAM F. NICHOLSON
Associated Press Writer

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Miguel Lozano, Bolivian immigrants to the United States, get an early Christmas present tonight when their 2-year-old daughter is returned to them after a battle of red tape to get her out of Bolivia.

Tiny Claudia Monica Lozano is scheduled to arrive in New York aboard a Lufthansa jetliner escorted by David Marks, an Albany, N.Y., radio ham who helped bring the distraught parents and their child together.

The Lozanos have lived in Albany for the past seven years as aliens with resident visas.

Miguel recently completed studies at Hudson Valley Community College. His wife, Aurora, is a tabulating machine operator. They have another daughter, Anita, 6, who was born in the United States.

Two years ago, Mrs. Lozano visited her parents in the Bolivian city of Cochabamba, 120 miles from La Paz, and while there gave birth to Claudia Monica. This made the baby a Bolivian citizen since her parents are not yet U.S. citizens.

Mrs. Lozano returned to the United States, obtaining a temporary tourist visa for Claudia Monica. U.S. officials here say this probably was an unconscious error on the part of the mother, since the child was really an immigrant.

Last March, the Lozanos received word that Mrs. Lozano's father was seriously ill and needed surgery.

Mrs. Lozano flew to Bolivia with both children to help care for her father.

Last September, she prepared to fly back to Albany and the problems began.

Mrs. Lozano, as a bona fide resident of the United States, had her papers in order. So did Anita, since she is a U.S. citizen, having been born on U.S. soil.

But Claudia Monica, as a Bolivian national, lacked a Bolivian passport.

U.S. consular officials say they explained to Mrs. Lozano that since the child was a Bolivian national, she would have to enter the United States as an immigrant. Usually this means an 18-month wait after getting an immigration visa.

But the officials say they explained to the mother that since she and her husband were already living in the States, all she had to do was get a Bolivian passport and obtain a routine affidavit saying that the family had the means to support the child.

"She said she would do that and went away," said one official. "The next thing we know, she's giving a press conference in Miami saying the U.S. government wants to keep her separated from her baby. Hell, we don't want to keep families apart!"

According to officials and others involved in the matter here, Mrs. Lozano didn't understand exactly what she had to do or, more likely, the relatives Claudia Monica was staying with in La Paz didn't bother to do anything about obtaining the needed documents until exasperated U.S. officials dug into their own pockets to pay for the passport fee and other papers.

Since the child needed an adult to accompany her to Albany, the Albany Rotary Club sent Marks to get her.

Asians urged to join battle on drugs

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials have met with members of China's U.N. delegation in a move to encourage the Asian Communist power to join efforts to stem international drug traffic.

Nelson Gross, State Department coordinator for international narcotics matters, said in an interview that he has talked to the Chinese and that they have said they are studying "the extent to which they will participate."

Gross said the United States and other members of the United Nations are encouraging the Chinese to seek a seat now vacant on the U.N.'s Commission on Narcotic Drugs.

In addition, he said, the Chinese are being urged to nominate a member of the International Narcotics Control Board.

Gross noted that the Chinese government has dealt effectively with its domestic drug abuse problem.

"How soon and how ready they are to cooperate internationally is still a question," he said.

All the discussions, said Gross, have been held within international bodies, such as the U.N., in which both countries are members. He said the question of the effect establishment of formal U.S.-Chinese diplomatic relations might have on Chinese cooperation has not been raised.

Federal narcotics enforcement agents, who asked that they not be identified, said in interviews that they expect establishment of relations with China would benefit greatly their attempts to cut off the flow of heroin from Asia into the U.S.

Heroin produced in Southeast Asia often is shipped from Thailand to Hong Kong in fishing trawlers. While the trawlers are in Chinese waters off Hong Kong, their cargo of heroin is transferred to smaller boats and smuggled ashore.

U.S. officials believe that with cooperation from the mainland Chinese this route could be blocked.

Gross cited narcotics control as a prime area in which to further the thaw in relations between the U.S. and China.

"For decades, the United States and China have had an identity of interest. We have both been victim nations," he said.

The federal narcotics officials denied reports that they have revised sharply upward their estimates of the amount of heroin entering the U.S. from Southeast Asia.

But they conceded that the lush opium fields of Burma, Thailand and Laos are a source of the raw material for heroin that is coming under what one government report called "upward market pressure."

"Curiouser and curiouser," thought Alice. "I know the Hatter is mad but lots of good bridge players in the real world are mad and this madness hasn't seemed to affect his game here in Wonderland."

She had led her six of spades against the Hatter's three no-trump contract. The dourmouse sitting East had played the jack. The Hatter had won with the queen, entered dummy with the king of diamonds and led the jack of clubs for a finesse.

Alice had taken the trick with her king and now had to decide whether or not to lay down the ace of spades.

The point to consider was that the Hatter had won with the queen and therefore had clearly shown that he also held the king. Had he false-carded and won the trick with the king Alice would not have known where the king was because the dourmouse would play the king if he held king-jack, but would play the jack if he held queen-jack.

Had the Hatter's play of the queen been carelessness or was there method in his madness and had his play been designed to tell Alice that he held the king so as to get her to lead some other suit?

Alice decided this latter was the case. She laid down her ace of spades; dropped the king and ran off enough spades to set the contract.

Treasure hunters 'dig' Oak Island, N. S.

By TOM TIEDE

OAK ISLAND, Nova Scotia (N.E.A.) — The story probably began in 1795. Probably. Nothing about the story is sure. History has it that three young men were exploring the eastern edge of this lonely cay when they stumbled into a curious clearing. In the middle of the clearing was a large tree with a branch lopped off. On that branch was an ancient rigging of maritime ball and tackle. And below the rigging, in the spongy earth, was an elaborate, bizarre, damnable hole which has excited and confounded adventurers for the nearly two centuries since.

The hole on Oak Island was determined to be about 10 feet in diameter and 200 or more feet deep. Man-made, without question. Someone, some time, for some reason, had fitted the shaft with at least a dozen log platforms at 10-foot intervals.

On one of the levels, so it's said, there rested a reward fit for royalty. Shortly after the shaft was discovered a team of sweaty excavators was supposed to have unearthed a crudely written (etched in flagstone) announcement, left by the original diggers no doubt, which read: "Forty feet below two million pounds are buried."

Thus began the mystery of Oak Island. A tiny spot of scrubby vegetation, a few hundred yards into Mahone Bay, 45 miles southwest of Halifax, the land has become a death trap for some and a delight for others. Beneath this wind-blown 130 acres is interred either pirate booty, Inca gold, a king's ransom or nothing but the giggling echoes of some long ago prankster. But whatever it is, men have now spent more than $2 million over 177 years to find it, and this search makes the cay one of the oldest, most exasperating "treasure islands" in the world.

By any measure, the years of hunting have been marked with incompetence, naivete and habitual ignorance. Everybody from trespassing children to well-heeled consortiums has taken turns picking away at what has become known as the island's "Money Pit." In the process six men have died (four at one time, in 1965), self interest has made legend of reality and reality of legend, and the treasure itself — "buried by men much more clever than we" — is perhaps no nearer the surface now than ever.

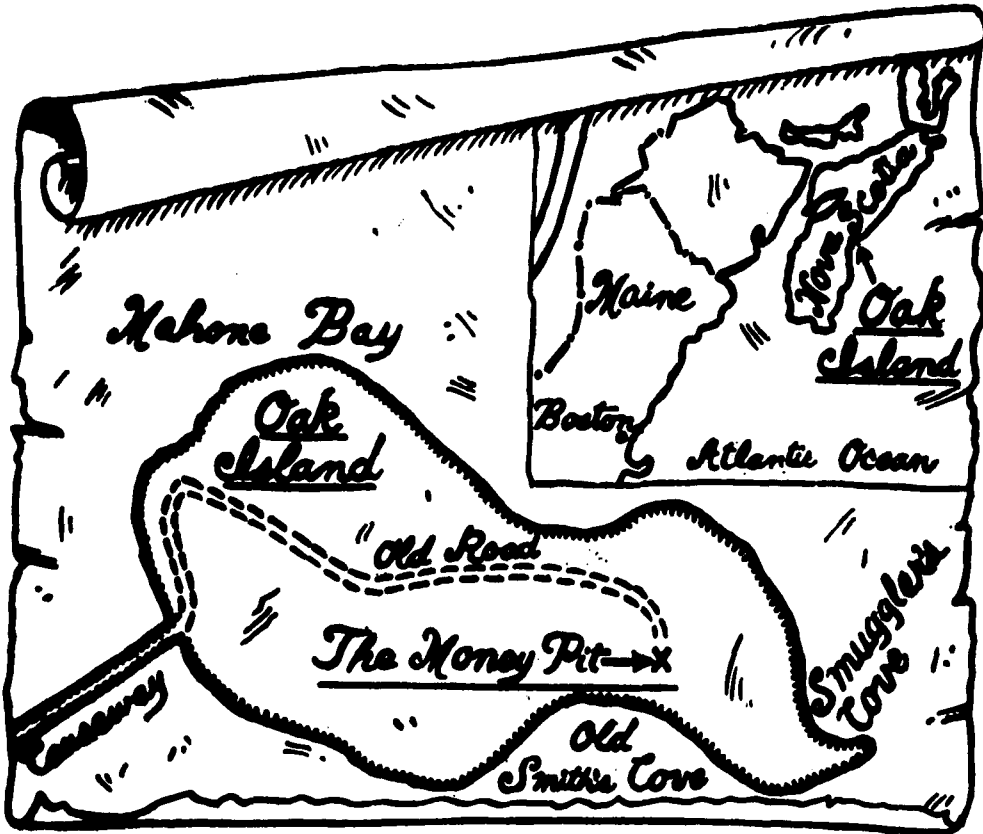

Part of the reason for the island's unlocked secret is the ingenious engineering ability of whomever first laid it to rest (observers agree the task must have taken at least 200 men at least two years). The Money Pit shaft rested atop two 500 foot "protection" tunnels which were connected to the bay. At high tide, the tunnels filled with water, but were kept from the shaft itself (it's believed) by an airtight formed by the alternating layers of platform sealings. When early explorers, in their eagerness, broke through the platforms, the pressure dropped and the shaft filled with the sea. Diggers in 1804 barely escaped the first floods with their lives.

But the lust of humankind, too, is to blame for the decades of largely unproductive search here. In their haste to get the goods, generations of explorers have all but obliterated much of the island's early promise. In the 1840s, according to some versions, excavators came within a few yards of what was believed to be a platform containing several pirate chests, then blew the bounty with carelessness. The shaft caved in and the chests, if that's what they were, fell to new and even more impenetrable depths. Since then the island has been dug and redug to an extent that old landmarks have been destroyed, old maps are now useless, old leads now dead.

Still, there remains the magnetic, almost mystical lure. And some tantalizing bits of evidence. Gold links were found in the teeth of one excavation drill in 1849, ancient parchment was uncovered in 1897 — and a heart-shaped, hand-crafted stone which was dug out in 1931 was determined by the Smithsonian Institution to be identical to those found at entrances to buccaneer "communal banks" in Haiti and Madagascar.

Indeed, it's all very tantalizing. "Something is buried out there," insists Ivan Shortliffe, a collector of Oak Island memorabilia. And if it's treasure, it wouldn't be the first gold found in the area. Shortliffe says an area raggicker, earlier this century, suddenly stopped working one day and lived for the rest of his life in suspicious splendor. Children who approached his property, on the shore, were chased away. Questions about his income were ignored. "When he died," says Shortliffe, "the old man left a trust fund that still buys a grave for anyone here who wants to be buried for free. Yes, yes, many people feel the old man found a treasure."

Pirates' booty or plenty of nothing? Whatever lies at the bottom of the Money Pit, it has made a tiny corner of Nova Scotia very popular with a certain type of visitor for almost 200 years.

So it is here, despite repeated Oak Island failures, the excitement continues. Franklin Delano Roosevelt put some money into one expedition in the 1930s. Texas oil companies have sunk exploratory shafts. People with divining rods and radar contrivances have given it a go. "I am on the trail of great wealth," said 56-year-old circus performer Robert Restall here in 1960. Few months later he fell and died in his shaft; so did his son and two others who jumped in to pull him out.

And the digging goes on. Presently the operation is under the control of 58-year-old, one time well-to-do Miami construction contractor Daniel Blankenship. He heard about Oak Island in 1965, then read "every pirate book in the Dade County Library." With that as a start, Blankenship wound up his Florida business, got in a car and drove to Nova Scotia. "I was bit. That's all. Maybe I was a fool—I made $100,000 in my last year in Miami and I've spent a lot of it here. But what could I do? It was like a mountain. I saw it and had to climb."

Blankenship has done precious little climbing here, naturally — Oak cay is as flat as a coat of paint. But he has apparently reached a level of vision, and opportunity, few of his predecessors enjoyed. Financed by a patient group of millionaires (who've spent $600,000 in six years), he has gone about his experiment scientifically as well as expensively. He early abandoned ideas about the original Money Pit (like many others, he feels that the shaft was merely a decoy), and has recently been concentrating on a hole of his own, 200 feet closer to the water. Using diving gear, two-way radios, tape recorders and even TV cameras he has put his entire wad that "Whatever it is, and I'm not saying what it is, is right below our feet. I know something is down there. I've seen it with my own two eyes."

What Blankenship has seen, via a watertight TV eye, has been both grotesque and intriguing. On one occasion, looking 200 feet down, he saw what appeared to be a human hand floating lazily in the murky water. To verify the image he called in his men, one by one, to make independent judgments. "When I said to one guy that it could be a glove, he said, 'Glove hell, that's a goddamn hand,'" Blankenship speculates that his drill cut the hand away from its body, and adds: "It's a well-known fact that pirates often buried their diggers with their treasure. That way there was no witness. They lay the hand itself, still fleshy. Blankenship says: 'I've had pathologists tell me that if people were buried so far down, they could still have Careful! CHICAGO (UPI)—Twenty million home and playground accidents annually make every day a day for caution in both places.

Some of the accidents, according to a report from the American Hospital Association, may be prevented through correction of design deficiencies. For example, modifying control knobs on certain electric stoves which are too easily turned on by brushing against them. Another example: setting standards for children's cribs so that the slats are not so far apart that a baby could struggle when its head was caught between slats.

all their flesh and hair. Because there's no oxygen that deep to eat it away."

Besides the hand image, which was never permanently recorded, Blankenship has a portfolio of photographs of such things as chests, human heads, footprints, etc. At least, he sees them as such. The photos are foggy. The images clear as mud. Even Blankenship admits that "After all this time, I may be seeing what I want to see."

Certainly Blankenship, like so many other Oak Island prospectors, could be forgiven some honest exaggeration. His lot for six years (six days a week) has been much more frustration than fruition. "So many times," he says, "we have been close. But then something happens." Some years ago, while drilling, the Blankenship crew hit something so hard it stopped a diamond bit. "It has to be iron at least," they decided. Then, after applying full power, the drill went through. "We knew that whatever it was had to be lodged in the drill casing. We wanted to pull the casing up, in 10-foot sections. I warned the men that we were going too fast. But we were all eager. Then, finally, when we got to the last casing, we all heard this loud noise. Whatever was lodged broke loose and fell all the way back down. My God. What a disappointment. I felt like going out and getting stone drunk."

Besides the disappointment, there has been considerable danger. Once, when lowered 120 feet below the water level in his shaft, Blankenship discovered that the air hose to his diving cap was kinked. "I had this emergency air tank strapped to my leg. Good thing. I told my men to get me the hell out of there. As it was, by the time I got out (slowly, to prevent the bends) I had one

Yet, with it all, Dan Blankenship digs on. And he doesn't even care if he brings up treasure any more, "just so I find something down there." He says he has discovered a huge round cavern near the bottom of his shaft, with a pair of blind room-like dugouts on either side. Surely, he speculates, with an unspoken prayer, "this must be it." But must it really? And even if it is, what, after all, is "it?"

No fewer than 15 major operations have dug into Oak Island in the last nine decades. But to this day nobody knows what the burrowers have been after. Inca gold? Unlikely. Crown jewels? Preposterous. One fellow has said the treasure is money, "at the bottom of an inverted pyramid," left there by God for the poor. The most likely possibility is that Oak Island was used by pirates as a kind of Zurich in Nova Scotia, a place where the bad guys could hide their ill-gotten loot in a common vault for a common cause. Such, at least, was done in other parts of the world.

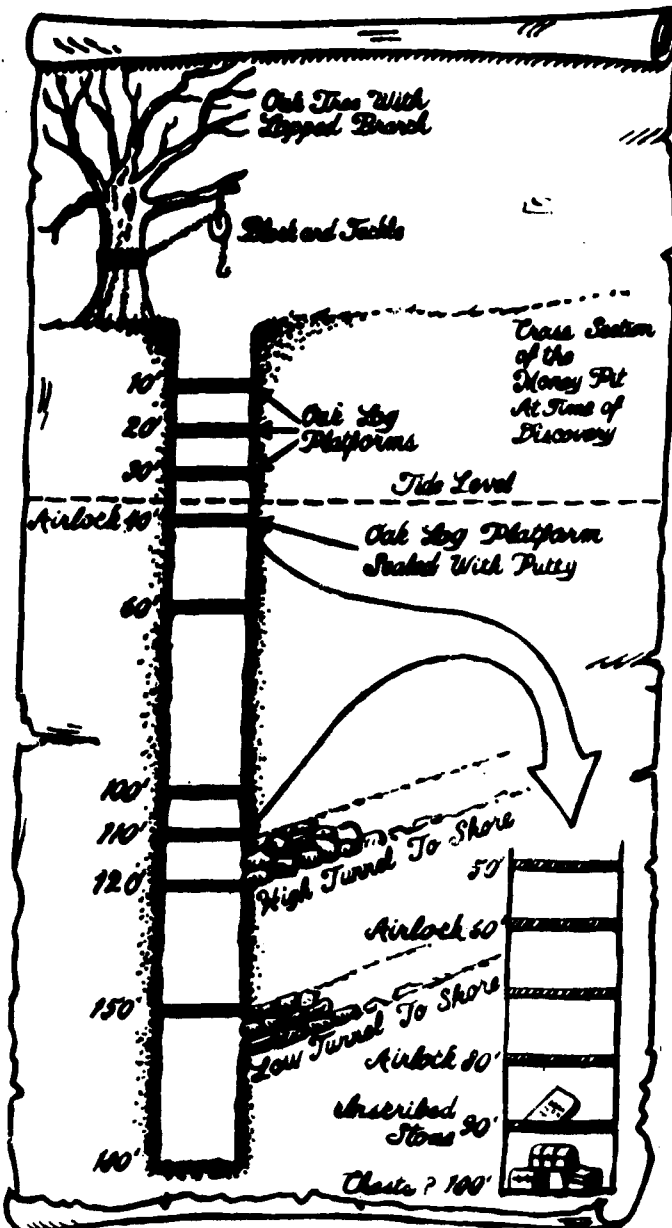

There are those, of course, joy-killers all, who believe the whole thing is a gigantic fraud. That half truths gave birth to the Oak Island legend and pranksters have kept it alive. The view is that pirates may have socked something away at one time (why else the elaborate money pit?), but then removed it and left the shaft network here as a ruse. Says one local: "I can see them laughing in their graves now."

But who knows? Perhaps we never shall know. And perhaps, in a way, we never should. "I saw enough to know there was a treasure buried here," said a prospector who failed late last century, "and enough to know that no one will ever get it out."

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

The Money Pit shaft rested atop two 500-foot protection tunnels which were connected to the bay. At high tide, the tunnels filled with water but were kept from the shaft itself by an air lock formed by the alternating layers of platform sealings.

PROMOTIONS ANNOUNCED—Three promotions and the reorganization of company sales territories has been announced by Charles T. Meyer, Jr., Chairman of the Executive Committee of Meyer's Bakeries, Inc.

In line with this reorganization, Meyer announced that three executives have been promoted to vice presidents of sales and marketing in their regions. They are Tom Culver, center, southeastern region; John Maner, right, northeastern region; and Claude White, left, western region.

Meyer revealed that the Bakeries' sales regions have been split into three primary areas with the Blytheville plant servicing the 13-county northeastern region and the Hope plant servicing the 29-county southeastern and western regions.

"The change in our sales territory organization and the increased responsibility for each of these men represents a step forward by Meyer's in providing even greater individual service to our customers," Meyer said.

A native of Birmingham, Ala., Culver was formerly a merchandising manager for the company. He has also served as sales manager in both Little Rock and Hope. Before joining Meyer's, he was a sales representative for the Kroger Co. and held managerial positions with McGough Bakeries and Interstate Bakery, both of Birmingham.

Maner of Blytheville, AR., was sales director for that area before the appointment. He joined the company first as a wholesale bread route representative. He later took over the sales manager position of the Blytheville Plant Division.

White, who will represent the Western Region, was a transport driver before becoming sales director, also out of the Hope Plant. He is a native of Rosston.

People in the News

WASHINGTON (AP) — Julie Nixon Eisenhower has flown to Barcelona, Spain, for a rendezvous with her young husband.

The White House disclosed Wednesday that the President's daughter flew to Spain by commercial airliner Tuesday night to join Lt. (j.g.) David Eisenhower, whose Navy ship is in port at Barcelona.

Julie was in Barcelona in mid-October for a week when David's ship was there last. A spokesman said Julie was expected to stay in Spain for about a week this time, too.

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Al Landon, the former Kansas governor and 1936 Republican presidential nominee, is in St. Mount-Vail Hospital here for a general medical checkup.

A hospital spokesman said Wednesday that Landon, who was admitted Tuesday, also was being treated for a pinched nerve which has been bothering him in recent months.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The wife of Academy award winning entertainer Isaac Hayes has won a divorce and a large property settlement.

The settlement calls for a $15,000 payment to Emily Ruth Hayes, 24, within 15 days and $40,000 a year in alimony and child support. Mrs. Hayes also won custody of the couple's 6-year-old son and two daughters, ages 4 and 2.

AT UNIVERSITY—Working with equipment used in the Northeast Louisiana University physical therapy curriculum are, from left, Linda Miles of Monroe, Clair Sherman of Haynesville, and Beth Lawrence, instructor, of Hope. The curriculum will affiliate with the hospital ship S. S. Hope in an intern program as part of students' required six-month clinical affiliation. (See article at right.)

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Sudden Baby Death Is Not Rare Problem

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—Thank you for your response to the sudden infant death (crib death) question in your column. It is obvious that you are aware of the great need of parents to have assurance that they are in no way responsible for the death of their child. Would it be possible for you to refer any future family to the Foundation? We have found it is a great help for the bereaved family to be able to communicate with another family who has experienced the same tragedy. Since this tragedy strikes at least 10,000 babies a year in the United States, there are a great many of us.

Dear Reader—I am glad to know that your organization, The National Foundation for Sudden Infant Death, Inc. (203 N. Wabash Avenue, Suite 1804, Chicago, Illinois 60601), and in New York, 1501 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10036) is helping bereaved families with this problem. After the column on crib deaths I received a great deal of mail as you would guess because of the frequency of this problem. Your organization is providing a great service in educating people about the nature of this disease. The literature that you provide to people is on target.

As you know, the cause of crib deaths is not known although there are several theories. The basic facts cited in one of your pamphlets should be useful to many people pointing out that these deaths are not caused by suffocation, aspiration, or regurgitation; that the disease is not contagious; and it is not hereditary.

Many of the letters I have received suggest that people think that this is caused by modern problems of pollution, water supply and the like, and I was pleased to note that one of your booklets points out that this disorder is as old as the Old Testament and was at least as frequent in the 18th century as it is now, before we had some of our problems of modern civilization.

It certainly is a tragedy that when a family is faced with this problem, they may be accused of being negligent of having mistreated the child. I suspect this problem is even worse now that child abuse has become a common social problem. It is only natural that law enforcement officers might raise this question when a sudden unexplained death such as a crib death occurs. Such a question could hardly be raised at a more inappropriate time as far as the bereaved parents are concerned. I also like the point that a baby sitter or a sibling caught in one of these events may have a problem afterward. I hope your organization will help to educate people that these deaths may occur suddenly within less than five minutes in apparently healthy children and for no apparent cause.

Because I have done a lot of work on irregularities of the heart, I personally suspect that a good many of these may be related to a sudden stopping of the heart. If the heart doesn't resume beating effectively within five minutes time, it is usually too late, and there is nothing to see on examination afterward.

I hope readers of this column who know parents who are faced with this problem will refer them to the National Foundation at the address given above.

Hope girl instructor

MONROE, La.—Northeast Louisiana University will have the first physical therapy students to work on the hospital ship S.S. Hope, according to Miss Champe Phillips, director of the physical therapy curriculum at NLU.

Terming the floating hospital internship "an experiment for them and a challenge for us," Miss Phillips said several Northeast students will be selected to join the S.S. Hope for two or three months as part of a six-month clinical affiliation necessary for a degree in physical therapy.

The curriculum director said the students would travel to the ship wherever it is located and will have the opportunity there to see many more types and degrees of illnesses not seen in the United States. These top physical therapy students will also get to work with medical doctors who are recognized specialists and who devote several months to practice on the ship.

Other clinical affiliations being sought are with hospitals in Arizona and Georgia, and in Scotland. Miss Phillips, who served as physical therapist with the S.S. Hope in 1963, said the Northeast program is seeking to offer at least one affiliation in a foreign country to every student in the program. The advantage of foreign clinical experience beyond promoting international interest, she said, is that many countries use different treatments which students can bring back to Louisiana.

Physical therapy is a health care profession whose practitioners work in hospitals, clinics, nursing homes and private practice. The practitioners work with patients who are disabled by illness or accident, or were born with a handicap.

The therapist plans and implement initial and subsequent treatment program on the basis of test findings and within the referral of the licensed physician with whom contact is maintained regarding the care of the patient.

The shipboard experience would be part of a four-and-a-half-year degree offering in physical therapy, an expanding curriculum at Northeast that is aiming for a fully accredited degree program by the spring of 1974.

Dr. Clark said accreditation is sought from the American Physical Therapy Association and the American Medical Association. The NLU curriculum can not be offered for approval until it has its first class of seniors. Presently eight juniors are enrolled.

"A sincere desire to help their fellowman," Miss Phillips said, ranked high in reasons why students choose this field. "They are action people," she said, "who do more than lip service when they see something wrong."

The eight juniors enrolled in the curriculum are: David Jo Johnson of Jonesville; Rickey Lane of Vidalia; Laird Wisley of Benton, Ill.; Danny Collins of Alexandria; Jerry Lowery of Joyce; Barbara Wilkinson of Monroe; Donna Neal of Mer Rouge; and Charles Bankster of West Monroe.

"We don't want to just meet the requirements of a good curriculum," Miss Phillips said. "We want to exceed them with an excellent program."

Several courses in the sciences, chemistry, math and physics are required in the curriculum. Courses that are new for the B.S. degree include: Therapeutic Exercise, Pre-clinical Clerkship, Therapeutic Techniques and Physiology of Physical Agents.

The 53 students enrolled in physical therapy share a lab with occupational therapy students. In the near future there will be an enlarged lab equipped for the physical therapy courses, according to Miss Phillips.
